Outlook

Despite the strong recent performance of global equities, we believe that opportunities remain to invest in well-managed, cash generative businesses with strong balance sheets at attractive valuation levels.

Investment environment

- Global equities made further progress in March due to growing expectations of an economic 'soft landing' in the US. The S&P 500 Index ended the month at a new high even as investors reappraised the outlook for inflation and interest rates.
- The Bank of Japan ended its negative interest rate policy with the Nikkei Index surpassing its previous record high from 1989.
- At the sector level, energy, materials, utilities and financials stocks outperformed while consumer discretionary, consumer staples and health care stocks underperformed.

Portfolio review

During March, holdings in financial companies ING, NatWest and Dai-Ichi Life outperformed as the sector continued to benefit from the higher interest rate environment and relatively benign economic backdrop. ING has a strong capital position and is expected to continue to pay an attractive level of dividend as well as buy back shares. NatWest was also very attractively valued in our view, offering a dividend yield in excess of 6%. The holding in Daimler Truck was beneficial with the company's earnings being upgraded following strong results and encouraging profit guidance for 2024.

Conversely, the holdings in AIA Group, Richemont and RELX detracted from relative returns. Insurance company AIA Group reported results broadly in-line with expectations but continued to be impacted by negative sentiment towards its Hong Kong and Chinese exposure. Richemont and RELX shares came under some pressure following a period of strong performance.

In terms of activity, we sold the positions in tobacco company Imperial Brands and commercial vehicle company Volvo. Volvo has performed well and we took the decision to exit the position following the payment of its dividend, while earnings forecasts for Imperial Brands continued to come under pressure. We used the proceeds to add to the position in AIA Group given its recent weak share price performance. We also increased the positions in Oracle and MediaTek with earnings forecasts at both companies expected to improve from current levels.

Manager outlook

Despite the resilience of the US economy and concerns about the path of inflation, we think central banks should still be able to cut interest rates during 2024, albeit the size and timing of any cuts remains uncertain. The global economy has coped better-than-expected with the higher interest rate environment and we believe that opportunities remain to invest in well-managed, cash generative businesses at attractive valuation levels, despite the recent strong performance of global equities. Shareholder returns announcements - in terms of both dividends and share buybacks - remain supportive and suggest that management teams share our confidence in the long-term outlook for their companies.

The MSCI ACWI High Dividend Yield Index is a measure of the combined performance of large and medium sized companies that pay above average dividends across developed and Emerging Market stock markets around the world. It is the basis for the Fund's income target.

The Investment Association (IA) groups funds with similar geographic and/or investment remit into sectors. The Fund's ranking within the sector (as calculated by a number of data providers) can be a useful performance comparison against other funds with similar aims.

Investment policy

The Fund invests at least 80% of its assets in shares (also known as equities) of companies, of any size, in any industry, in any country. The Fund may also invest in other assets including cash and money market instruments. The Investment Manager may use derivatives (complex financial instruments) to reduce risk, to manage the Fund more efficiently, or to generate additional income for the Fund. The Fund is actively managed with reference to the MSCI ACWI High Dividend Yield Index, which is broadly representative of the companies in which it may invest, as this forms the basis of the Fund's income target. The Investment Manager has discretion to choose investments for the Fund with weightings different to the index or not in the index. As an additional means of assessing the performance of the Fund, the IA Global Equity Income sector average, which is based on a peer group of broadly similar funds, may also provide a useful comparator.

Investment strategy

The Investment Manager follows a dividend-seeking, valuation-driven strategy that focuses on companies with good and growing cashflow. The investment process seeks to identify companies from around the World with income growth prospects (typically with defensible competitive positions, affordable investment requirements, aligned management behaviour and sustainable returns) and companies with capital growth prospects (typically unloved, with under-appreciated earnings and undervalued shares). The process results in a portfolio well diversified by sector and geography.

Fund specific risks

The Fund could lose money if a counterparty with which the Fund trades becomes unwilling or unable to meet its obligations, or as a result of failure or delay in operational processes or the failure of a third party provider. Shares/Units can lose value rapidly, and typically involve higher risks than bonds or money market instruments. The value of your investment may fall as a result. The Fund may use derivatives with the aim of reducing risk or managing the portfolio more efficiently. However this introduces other risks, in particular, that a derivative counterparty may not meet its contractual obligations. If the Fund holds assets in currencies other than the base currency of the Fund, or you invest in a share/unit class of a different currency to the Fund (unless hedged, i.e. mitigated by taking an offsetting position in a related security), the value of your investment may be impacted by changes in exchange rates. Securities within the Fund could become hard to value or to sell at a desired time and price, especially in extreme market conditions when asset prices may be falling, increasing the risk of investment losses. Some or all of the ongoing charges may be taken from capital, which may erode capital or reduce potential for capital growth.
